Faculty Members Hear Speech On Folk Lore

The "new civilization" is going to sweep before it many of the traditions of the past, unless a conscious effort is made to preserve the folk songs, music and dances of the past, Miss Sarah Gertrude Knott, founder and director of the National Folk Festival, told a group of Southern Illinois University faculty here today.

Miss Knott, en route to Paducah, Ky., for a joint meeting Friday of musical and other clubs to discuss regional folklore, stopped here to have a luncheon conference with officers of the new Illinois Folklore Society, which has its headquarters here at the University, and others interested in the folkloric movement.

She described the founding of the National Folk Festival 14 years ago, and said that groups from some 25 states would present folk songs, music and dancing at the national festival this year, to be held in St. Louis August 7-10.

Bring People Together

She stressed the democratic nature of the American folk festival movement, which depends entirely on voluntary participation, in contrast to the movements in many European countries, which have been highly nationalistic in nature and often have been at least partly government-subsidized.

"Of course the real basis for the movement is the fun which the participants get out of singing and dancing," she said.

TOM SCOTT, SINGER, HERE MONDAY

Tom Scott, young singer, composer and stranger of American folk songs, will present a musical program Monday at 8 p. m. in Shryock Auditorium.

Known as the "American Troubadour," Scott is an authority on folk songs, particularly those of our own country and has collected hundreds of them. He has arranged many of them for the radio.

Carl Van Doren once said of Scott's ballads, "These songs are an essence of America, now tragic, now comic, now tough, now tender, set to memorable music."

Having made several appearances in concert, the theatre, radio and supper clubs, Scott sings his American folk songs to his own accompaniment on the guitar.

HAROLD C. HINES FORMS TWO BANDS FROM OLD ONE

Southern's band has recently been divided into two bands—a 35 member, and a 15 member, according to Harold C. Hines, director.

Mr. Hines gave two reasons for the division. (1) The band was too big and too many, and (2) there is a considerable amount of difference in the experience of the players.

In trying to prepare for a concert Mr. Hines found he could not perfect the numbers for a performance under the former conditions. The concert band, of approximately 35 members, will be able to prepare concerts more rapidly.

The concert band will meet on Monday and Friday mornings and on Tuesday nights. The variety band will meet on Wednesday mornings.

PLAY CONTEST FOR ALL STUDENTS

An intramural one-act play contest for all student organizations at Southern Illinois University will be conducted in February by the Little Theatre. Dr. Archibald McLeod, director of the student dramatic group, has announced.

Nine student groups, including fraternities, the women's dormitory, several independent houses and the Student Christian Foundation, have indicated they will enter the preliminary contest Feb. 11 and 12. Finals will be held February 18.

Medals will be presented to the outstanding actor, the outstanding actress, and to members of the cast of the winning play. A traveling trophy goes to the group presenting the winning play.

The debate, which lasted about two hours, was followed by a question period.

LINDEGREN IS INVITED TO PARIS IN JULY

Dr. Carl Lindgren, director of Southern Illinois University's new biological science research laboratory, has been invited by the Swedish government to participate in the Stockholm International Congress of Agricultural Industries in July.

Theme of the congress, to be conducted by the Commission Internationale des Industries Agricoles, will be "hybridization of yeasts," a field in which Dr. Lindgren is an internationally known specialist.

Dr. Lindgren will be accompanied by Dr. J. H. S. Sweden July 7-14.

Dr. and Mrs. Lindgren, who assist him in the laboratory here, had already made arrangements to participate in the eighth International Genetics Congress in Stockholm, Sweden July 7-14, but hope to be able to reach Paris for at least part of the agricultural congress, which will also attend the International Zoological Congress in Paris in July.

It was part of the University's arrangement with Dr. Lindgren when he joined the University faculty last year that he would be able to attend such scientific congresses held outside the country.

Southern's Assistant Dean Bears Grievances of Males On Campus

Attention all men students! Are you having trouble deciding whether to be an M. D. or a mechanic? Has your girl been giving you the cold shoulder? Do you need financial advice? If you are answering all of these questions, "Yes," the person for you to see is Laddford J. Bischof, the newly appointed assistant to the dean of men.

Mr. Bischof became interested in personnel work when he was working in the steel industry. He then enrolled in a teacher's college (the name of which he prefers to keep a secret). After receiving his degree, he started on teaching career which included junior high school, high school, and a boy's reform school.

Mr. Bischof then went into the army and spent two years as an enlisted man, working with a psychologist team in an army general hospital. There he helped in

House Approves Bill to Increase Vet's Payments

The House of Representatives approved a bill Tuesday to increase the rehabilitation payments to veterans enrolled in colleges and universities throughout the United States by a vote of 370 to 6.

The measure has already been passed by the Senate, and now awaits only the president's signature.

After doing publicity work in Washington, D. C., Mr. Bischof was sent to Lincoln, Nebraska in 1946, he then came to work at Southern in the vocational guidance department.

Recently Mr. Bischof has been working on his doctor's degree in personnel psychology at Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y.

Somewhere in this crowded curriculum of events, he has found time for his hobbies which are free lance writing and cartooning, some published.

While he is here at SIU, Mr. Bischof hopes to have a remedial academic methods program.

Campus Dance Attended By 500 At Anthony Hall

An estimated 500 attended the dance at Anthony Hall last night. The chairman stated that the event was very successful.

The first all-campus informal dance, sponsored by the campus dance steering committee, was held in the dining room of Anthony Hall, Wednesday, Feb. 4, from 7:30 to 10.

The steering committee is composed of one representative from each campus organization that is interested in providing a place for students to dance.

The concession committee, composed of Virgil Spruill, chairman, and Dale Houghland, Lewis Waters, Mary Ann Terry, and Nadine Twichell, sold soda during the evening.

Money cleared from soda sales will be toward buying new records. In the future, there is a possibility of clearing enough money to hire an orchestra for the dances.

Final plans for the dance were completed at the next meeting of the committee held Thursday, January 24.

Representatives of organizations not represented at the first meeting on January 22 were: Bill Phelps, Jack Delta Chi, Robert Clark, Alpha Phi Omega, Lee Chonoe, Delta Sigma Epsilon, Marylyn Provant, House of Seven Gables, Nadine Twichell, student wives, Jack Delta Chi, Delta Chi, Dale Houghland, "T" club, Dr. Margaret Karsner, student life committee, and Esther Pajak, student council.

THE CORN CRIB
Edited by Wallace Peebles

The bus was crowded, so the elegant lady took one of the rear seats reserved for smokers. Soon a man sat down beside her and started to fill a grimy looking pipe. "My good man," said the lady, "smoking always makes me feel sick." "Does it now?" remarked the fellow sympathetically, touching a match to his pipe. "Then take my advice, lady, and don't smoke."

A long skirt is like prohibition. The joints are still there but they're harder to find.

Electric Blanket With 'Short' One Way To Do Jitterbugging

- "Jitterbug" is the most distinctive dance of this generation, it is especially important for all college students to be perfectionists in the simple art of "cutting a rug."
- Jitterbugging, some believe, had its origin in the ancient fire-worshipping practice of hopping on hot coals. Actually, this expressive dance is an outgrowth or a modification of the French Can-Can, (that is to say, what the Can-Can can't, jitterbugging can.)
- The jitterbug dance is carried about on the joints (both the osteopathical and herb joints). Also, it may be witnessed at sanatoriums, where it is given the name of "St. Vitus Dance."
- How to become a "gater" may be explained in seven simple steps:
1. Play on your vitrola some suitable record, such as "Who Takes Care of the Care-Taker's Daughter When The Care-Taker Is Taking Care?"
 2. Select a suitable partner,

Let's Ignore Your Mind

Tooth and Consequences... (With apologies to Ralph Edwards, a local dentist, and anyone who happens to read this.)

We glanced nervously at our two-dollar watch, and walked slowly up the narrow stairs. The stairs looked terrible and smelled even worse; worse than the janitor had been using embalming fluid instead of floor sweep. We breathed deeply and hoped that we had made no mistake and our dental appointment wasn't really until sometime next year. Deciding to be brave about the whole thing, we fairly jumped through the door into the waiting room beyond. Such a cheerful scene. Three elderly people grinned at us toothlessly and a small boy with swollen cheeks was screaming defiantly and throwing last year's magazines at a lady who looked like she was his mother, and sorry of it. We caught a magazine the kid threw at us and thoughtfully read an article entitled, "The Truth About Tooth Decay."

Then we were being ushered into the inner-sanctum by a charming nurse who thoughtfully asked us how we were feeling. We lied to her, and grinned weakly at the dentist who glanced up from the set of false teeth he was working on and smiled broadly. We climbed into an electrical looking chair that faced a huge set of drills and a display of instruments used by dentists and ditch-diggers.

The dentist picked up one of the smaller portable drills and slowly approached from the right side. We casually braced ourselves, a process that resulted in our kicking out a small window.

We closed our eyes, opened our mouth, and silently resolved to live a better life. Somewhere a drill sounded, somewhere close. And then, it was all over. We leaped out of the nice comfortable chair and shook hands with the dentist who was suddenly a wonderful fellow. We grinned at the nurse and went out through the cheerfully decorated waiting room. Then we hurried happily down stairs that were things of beauty and smelled of cologne.

confidently. "Coincidence, son, coincidence."

"Why do you squirt?"
"It's my peculiarity. Everybody has a peculiarity."
"I don't have any."
"Do you stir your coffee with your right hand?"
"Yes, of course."
"That's your peculiarity. Most people use a spoon."

I felt his soft breath on my cheek, And the gentle touch of his hand. His very presence near me Like a breeze on a desert sand.

He deftly sought my lips, And my head hid gently hold. Then he broke the silence with, "Shall the filling be silver or gold?"

KAMPUS KAPERS by Plater

"Sorry, the only raffle tickets I have left are on my house mother and Old Man."

Record Review by Glenn Brown

Ratings:
—The Best.
—Good
—Mediocre
—Poor

CLASSICAL:
 Resonance's Quartet, Opus 55. (Paganini Quartet). Three albums of Beethoven's quartets. The Paganini Quartet superbly play each album with intuitive authority. Even those who customarily scorn all quartets as mere "dinner music" will find ample reward in listening to these recordings, which can be bought singly. (Victor).
 Piano Concerto in E-Flat. (Arthur Schnabel accompanied by The Dallas Symphony Orchestra).

Technically, this record is good but Rubenstein plays Liszt's concerto much too fast and too furiously. His sensitive beauty is completely hidden. And while the Dallas orchestra does its best, it still sounds too much like Dallas, and too little like Liszt. (Victor).

POPULAR:
 Gotta Get A Girl. (Tony Pastor). The Clooney Sisters provide an unusual background for the typical Pastor treatment of a novelty song. However side features in Pastor singing YOUR RELI WAGON, an other novelty, which uses an increasingly popular pie-club mood of background. (Columbia).
 Don't Call It Love. (Claude Thornhill).
 Fran Warren does a fine vocal on this ballad, while the up-and-coming Thornhill contributes some of his popular one-finger pianistic. I NEVER LOVED ANYONE. The album features a medley of Gene Williams' vocal of a mediocre tune. (Columbia).
 The Last Time. (Louis Armstrong, Hot Five). Here is jazz in its purest form. This has been recently re-released in an album containing some of Armstrong's jazz classics. It was waxed back in 1937 when Satchmo was still adorning as Johnny Dodds, Kid Ory, Johnny St. Cyr, and Lil Armstrong. Armstrong's stuttering vocals highlight both JME and the reverse side, I'M SOT RICH. (Columbia).
 I Wanted For You. (Dizzy Gillespie). The "Diz," who won the Metro-nome hand-of-the-year award, shows a slight sign of commercialism here, but it is still good bebop. Pancho Hazood contributes an Eckstine-like vocal. Flipover, SALT PEANUTS, presents a new boppy frothing of the earlier-recorded novelty. (MGM).

Original Library Regulations Far Cry From Those Today

Does this sound fantastic? It's not. One of these days you may be able to graduate from college without setting foot on a campus. In fact, this education-by-radio system is already in operation at the University of Minnesota.

Of course, not every type of course can be taught by radio.

NOTES IN PASSING PERSONALITY SPOTLIGHT

Bill Price
The time for decision had come. Should he act against all the laws of nature and do this terrible thing, or should he take the easy road out?

He turned his face to the wall, every fiber in his being was shouting, "No, No. You shouldn't do this." He began to reel uncontrollably in his cell of bloodiness. Why, oh why, did man have to come to these crossroads in life, where his whole future depended upon one decision? He must think. He must. People were depending on him. He had his reputation to consider. Events would occur this day, that would ultimately become of world importance. HE and HE ALONE must decide this momentous question.

His mind began to blur from the overtaxing mental work. No. No. He could not let himself slip. He must hang on. Fight man. Fight. What could he do?

Now he is getting more rational in his thinking. He is thinking of the advantages and disadvantages of his every move. If he does this, that will happen. If he does that, this will happen. It is so much better to do this, but think of the calamity that would befall his colleagues, his dependents, and his constituents, if he was unable to perform his duty.

Yes, he must. He owes it to himself, his family, and his friends. He must do this thing that he will have to drive himself to do. He must make the sacrifice, there is no other way out.

So... he got up and went to the eight o'clock class.

by Mary Barton
There's at least one fellow on the campus who loves the snow. Just the snow, not the cold weather.

Until three years ago when he first came to the United States, Senior Jose Reyes-Navarro had never seen snow. He tried skating recently and enjoyed it very much in spite of the number of falls he had. Now he wishes he had a pair of skis to try skating.

Sports are one of Senior Reyes' main interests. He enjoys both the basketball and football games at Southern. He mixes frantically, a Mexican hall game, for which he was Mexico City champion in 1937. He was also champion in handball in 1936 and 1937.

Senior Reyes, who is a member of the Experiment in International Living, likes college life at Southern very much. He finds the people much more friendly than they have been in other places he has been. He particularly likes the young American girls and loves to talk with them. In Mexico he spent a lot of time in work and study, but he finds it more pleasant to have fun and relax here at Southern as well as work and study. Busy he is too, as he teaches Spanish and takes courses in psychology, individual guidance, and social research methods. He plans to go to Southern about now or next year.

Senior Reyes likes photography, and particularly likes to photograph young ladies. Dancing? He says he isn't a good dancer, but he enjoys it very much. Walking heads his list of favorites, and his likes footrests and slow dancing. No jitterbugging please! The current sentimental songs rate first place with him, too.

Since Senior Reyes hasn't seen his mother, two sisters, and brother for thirteen months, he is somewhat homesick. He says he'd like to divide his time living in Mexico about six months, then living in the United States the other six.

He is very impressed with living in American homes. He credits his adjustment to United States customs and learning the American way of life to living in American homes. While in Carbondale, he has lived at the Delta Delta Chi house, the Nu Alpha Alpha house, and the home of Dr. David McDaniel.

The statement that he loves his work is proved by the work he has done. Since he came to the United States in 1945, he has visited twenty colleges and universities throughout the country. He has made about thirty talks at schools and civic organizations in Southern Illinois. He taught Spanish at the University of Maryland. He has his bachelor's of arts in architecture and bachelor's degrees in civil engineering degrees and is working for his master's at the present time. His activities are too numerous to mention. He lived at Madrid, Spain, with his mother and brother, Carlos before the Spanish Civil War.

So if a fellow wants to talk to him on the campus and hands you some literature on education for international understanding, that's Senior Reyes.

SEVENTY-ONE FILMS ADDED TO FILM LIBRARY HERE

Seventy-one new films ranging from an animated cartoon explanation of atomic energy to a movie of kittens at play have been added to the film library of Southern Illinois University's Audio-Visual Education Service, Donald A. Ingill, director, has announced.

Many of the films depend on animated drawings to reduce complicated ideas to a visual pattern that is easily grasped. Subjects as colloids—particles in matter which cause it to feel, as gelatin, starches, albumin, etc.—are clarified by "moving" pen and ink sketches.

Grouped water, soil resources, property taxation, the teeth, chemical reactions are all demonstrated at least partially by animated drawings.

Film Dramatic Skills

Films to dramatize certain skills, vocations and professions are numerous among the University's new offerings. These include movies of the cattleman, showing the ranch family and the hired hands at grazing, stanching, alumin, etc.—are clarified by "moving" pen and ink sketches.

Grouped water, soil resources, property taxation, the teeth, chemical reactions are all demonstrated at least partially by animated drawings.

Other films follow a mother and daughter on an airplane trip, tell children how to take care of pets; accompany three farm youngsters on a jaunt to the fair; tell the story of two city children who spend the summer on the farm; show how to use a bank; describe how to avoid a cold; demonstrate how to use a dictionary and how to use a library.

Classes at Southern Universities

A series of films about children of various countries has been added, including children of China, Holland, Japan, Switzerland, Mexico, Hawaii, Spain, Germany, and French-Canadian children.

One film by animated drawings and photography presents the nature and meaning of democracy, while another shows the various abuses of despotism, presenting the thesis that all communities can be ranged on a scale running from democracy to despotism, and showing the conditions that give rise to despotism.

ODE TO THE LOOK By BOB YEACH

Is the new Look new? Just how recent do you think it really is? Be fair and square yourself with your grandmother: she can tell you more about the Look than you can find in books. Her art, ask grandfathers how old he was before they took the Look off him, and issued tight-kneed knickers.

It took the male populace almost 266 years to convince women that shorter dresses were more practicable, but only took a war to start them toward the ground again.

It could be irony; but why all the fuss about longer dresses, full coverage with padded hips and shoulders, when it only takes a man-sized handkerchief torn in three pieces to make the latest styled bathing suit?

It really is nothing to get excited about; we were just sat down and wrote a few thousand word ditty just for kicks.

From ear to her sole, 'twas covered there; Tho' Hens of old with old-fashioned hairs.

No bold advance, no arm was bare; A guy just tho', what goes 'neath there.

In that land all hustle and bustle; Eighteen inch waists were always a tussle.

Her bonnet was starched, staves made of wood; Times were too rough, just simply no good.

Then soon things did happen, when up off the floor; Hens hemlines not slackened, nine inches, no more.

Then shortly Hens weakened, more willing to please; A trade bit shorter, hems got to their knees.

Said Grandpa to Pa, 'Twasn't listening I then; 'Keep those skirts shorter, to hell with that hem.

Out of the hills came Peter F. Peta, An oglin' and woin' all moids off their feet.

When shorter their sanction, the gals in their mirth; Quick lost all direction, the boys went to work.

Ah, lost was the Belle, none here to the war; The boys went through Hell, fire-water and war.

Back came the boys soon, just chuckled full of glee; Expecting a full moon, a sight of a knee.

Ah, was were the G-guys, what rights they did see; Nothing but blue skies, just where was that knee?

Yes, hemlines had lengthened, "In bowed" they did say; To none would we mention, just mowed and said "Nay."

Now long did Hens weaken, less willing to please; An awful bit longer, hems dropped past their knees.

I wonder how long now, the New Look will last? I'll bet you ten dollars, you guess the rest.

Carterville Cynic Caustically Comments On Commuters' Capers

By HELEN HOLMES

Southern has 542 commuters, 422 boys and 121 girls. Marion and Murphysboro have the largest numbers. A day in a commuter's life in Southern has few dull moments.

For instance, this morning the bludge on the door would not catch. The ten miles the snow and wind blew in as the door was opened and slammed at least 80 times.

An emergency brake for a hill is a convenience that commuters often do not have. In one group a different member each day has the pleasure of placing a log under the back wheel, to keep the car from slipping when parked.

MUSEUM EXHIBITS TO BE TAKEN TO ILLINOIS SCHOOLS

The Extension Service and the University Museum is starting a new service for this area by taking exhibits of museum materials to Southern Illinois schools.

An average of 100 school children each month visit the Southern Museum and find an eye-opening thrill in seeing the collections of pioneer Southern Illinois household equipment, farm tools, professions and trade equipment, transportation facilities, birds, reptiles and other wild life.

This new service, according to Raymond H. Day, director of the Extension Service, and John Allen, history curator of the Museum will take the exhibits straight into the classroom, so they can serve as object lessons directly linked with classwork.

Traveling Models

In many cases, the traveling exhibits will be made up of models sometimes smaller than life, some times larger than life. For example, in the exhibit on weaving, one real spinning wheel, generations old, will be included, but two tiny models—both of which will really spin—and a model loom that will actually weave will also be shown. On the other hand, in the exhibit on sea life, a 15-inch model of a peramutium—the microscopic single-cell organism, too tiny to be seen with the naked eye—will illustrate the internal mechanism of the cell.

At first, the University will send out only about a dozen exhibits, each centralized around one activity, such as weaving, spinning, shoemaking, or candle dipping, around the story of one industry, such as transportation facilities or household lighting; or around one variety of animal life, such as birds, or mammals or sea life.

BRITISH SCHOOLS TO BE OPEN TO U. S. STUDENTS

Seven British universities and colleges will receive about six hundred places for American students to attend summer school during July and August 1948. This will provide the second post-war opportunity for students from the United States and all other countries to meet fellow students from other countries in Britain.

The schools are intended primarily for graduates and teachers who have made some previous study in the subjects offered, but in some cases undergraduates in their junior or senior year, with special interests or academic training, will be able to attend. Preference will be given to those who wish to take the full period of a course. At some universities special assistance will be given to students preparing these in their subject.

Kept Small

The schools will be kept fairly small in number so that, while they may still be representative international gatherings, they will not be too large to be conducted in seminars, with plenty of opportunities for discussion.

Students who complete their course to the satisfaction of their tutors will be given a certificate of attendance. Credits obtained, by previous arrangement with the registrars of their own universities, be transferred to students' home colleges.

The Unswat White Star Line has agreed to make about 150 round trip passages available for successful candidates, but applications for these passages will be considered only after the student has been accepted for a school.

Many students, it is expected, will make their own travel arrangements.

The cost of the courses, including tuition and maintenance for the six weeks, will be from $240 to $261. Living arrangements for the students will be made through the schools. Port to port transport for American students will be from $328 to $448 for the round trip.

GI Bill Applies

The schools will be recognized by the Veterans Administration for grants under the G. I. Bill of Rights. Applications for a supplementary certificate of eligibility should be made to the Veterans Administration regional office which has jurisdiction over an applicant's training program. It should be noted, however, that the substantial allowance under the G. I. Bill of Rights will not cover the cost of maintenance at a summer school.

All inquiries about the summer schools should be made to the Institute of International Education at 2 West 46th Street, New York, N. Y. The Institute will make the final selection of successful applicants. Those students interested in more data one of the courses offered, will be invited to specify their second and third choices on the application form. All applications must be received by the Institute by March 15, 1948.

Rev. Douglas MacNaughton, director of the Student Christian Foundation, attended the Midwest Conference of Professional Religious Workers on University Campuses. The conference was held January 29 to February 1 at the Lawson YMCA in Chicago.

Approximately 100 delegates from many colleges and universities attended. All Protestant denominations in YMCA and YWCA were represented.

$15,000 Received For Southern's Research Projects

Check for $15,000 has been received by Southern Illinois University from Amnauer-Busch, Inc., as that company's contribution to research projects carried on by Dr. Carl C. Lindeger, director of the University's biological science research laboratory. University President Chester F. Lay has announced.

The company has supported Dr. Lindeger's research in baking yeasts as a source of nutrients for a number of years, while he has been on the staff of Washington University, and will continue to aid his work by grants to Southern.

Gremlins Haunt Students And Southern Instructors

By DON GRUBB

Little homey gremlins daily ply upon our good nature. If allowed, without the necessary self-control or restraint, they may build an impregnable wall, brick by brick, depriving us of our ordinary sense of humor. They're not the big things, they are the minute undermining plagues such as trite statements, the over-taxed word, a too familiar question, an ink-smoke saying, or the over-acquaintance of a reality, that stares us in the face daily, until we have reached the point where we are tempted to withdraw from society altogether.

These same gremlins are at work right here on Southern's campus. For instance, on a recent research tour of the University these pet peeves were gleaned.

For instance it was learned that Dr. Eileen Barry of the foreign language department and a teacher of Greek and Latin, has a good humor test every time the new student in Greek class blurts out, "It's all Greek to me."

Gremlins are again at work when some one asks Carlos Pleshe, Obelisk editor, when the Obelisk is coming out. To help Carlos out, the year book generally comes out at the end of the year.

Still Sipping SNUU

Two common errors, saying SINU and "college," in reference to SIU and the University are trying occurrences for Miss Lorena Drummond, director of Information Service.

First on the list in the History department's files of irksome questions is: "Is there a language requirement for a history major?"

Dr. Floyd F. Cunningham of the Geography department relates that he attends five or six classes a day by virtue of thin walls. All too common questions asked in this department include those such as, "How to keep up with geography with maps and all hanging?" (Note to laymen: Rivers, mountains, and continents retain their same physical features, it is man who changes political boundaries; while some unoberserving souls still ask, "Why don't we have the old fashioned winters like grandpa used to experience.")

Issuing from the home economics corner we find the chief current complaint is persons who borrow things and don't return them. Scissors, needles, thread, ice bodes, and stoves should be promptly returned after they have been used, they insist.

"My heater won't work," is the common winter slogan heard in the office of Van A. Buboltz, supervisor of veteran's housing. Parking problems and proper garbage disposal are other current problems found in and around the housing area.

The questions which take top billing in the University book store are: "When are the books coming in?", and "When are you going to get in those two-winged binders."

Heard every week at deadline time in the Egyptian office are famous last words from the harrasing reporter, "I'm sorry but my copy will be a little late this week."

Ask For Checks

Lack of interest by the student body in what the Student Council is and how it functions has brought comment from that organization.

Gremlins work overtime in the business office when students come in "at the middle of the month" and ask for their checks.

Registration schedules, grade cards, and final examination schedules form the nucleus for many a trying hour for workers in the registrar's office. Especially when the cry is made for next Term's class schedule in the middle of the preceding term.

Rev. Douglas MacNaughton relates that he is often confronted by those asking: "Saving any souls today Reverend?"

A wide opinion, expressed by a sizable cross-section of students on the campus, showed high cost and crowded eating conditions near the top of the gripe list white boys of this group chose long skirts in the second spot. Girls' pet peeves were too varied to draw a definite conclusion as to a number one choice, but strong sentiment was expressed toward high food prices and poor service in town and around campus.

Only a small portion of the gremlin work here on campus is thus exposed, however, one can feel confident that this survey has only scratched the surface, and that these little men with anti-social attitudes will continue to plague us.

Southern's 'Going to the Dogs' As Canines Come to College

Tearing out of a room on second floor Old Main and heading north for a quick coffee, we ran into a familiar face, and right away gave our best. "Hi! Busy" he said. He climbed off the floor onto his four sturdy legs, shook the dust from a paw, and handed it to us to shake. As he did we noticed his companion, who had climbed to two paces and a back seat. We asked him from the side of our mouth, "Who's the friend?" "Oh, I almost forgot," he says, "this is Alice. Like her?" "Nice," we replied, and to Alice, "We see you got the paw that refreshes." She snarled.

Something was bothering Shady. His eyes were dark pink with red lines and three or four ridges under each eye. We reached over with our index finger touched his nose; sure enough it was warm. That cinched it. We had to find out what was the matter.

"Mon. Rusey," we said, "what's ailing you?" He frowned deeply and finally said, "Okay, it's Alice and me. We've been having all kinds of trouble here. We can't sleep in th' halls in peace and we can't even talk in peace either. 'T'day Mrs. 'Famena Dogs' Smith corrected my grammar as I was talking 't' Alice here. She actually hears what dogs say."

And then guys from that building with th' towels on it, they have funny looks in their eyes. I believe they got designs on Alice and me. For instance, just yesterday a student came up to me as I was leaving the flagpole and broke off a piece of his horseshoe candy and handed it to me. Not suspecting that he was blindfolding me with sweets I most appreciably accepted and wagged my thanks. Just then Alice happened along. The student musta tried the same trick on her before, for she slid up to me and whispered excitedly, "Fast. Zoology." Quick as a flash a gong rang in my head, and thinking of no other excuse to get away, I winked at him and

38 STUDENTS NOW EMPLOYED AT LIBRARY

Thirty-eight students work in the University library. More girls than boys are employed there as the statistics are 23 to 15 in favor of the girls. The average number of hours worked each month by each of these students is approximately 70. The pay for student assistants over the entire campus is as the campus depending upon experience. The range is from 40c for inexperienced help to $16 for graduate students who are either doing research or instructing.

Eleven professionally trained librarians compose the staff of the University libraries, one of whom is on leave this year. Each librarian has a professional library degree, which requires one year of work beyond a bachelor's degree. Four librarians have two professional library degrees, which means that they have completed two years of work beyond a bachelor's degree. Three other staff members have a master's degree in English. Two civil service workers are also employed in the library.

Fifth In Series of Classical Dramas To Be Presented

"Lady Windermere's Fan," by Oscar Wilde, will be the fifth in a series of classical dramas given by the Speech Department in co-ordination with the Information Service over radio station WJPF, Carbondale, at 2:00 p. m., Friday, February 6, according to Dr. Archibald McCleod, associate professor in the Department of Speech and director of the plays.

The cost for the presentation will be charged from those students enrolled in the Speech Activities course 208 and 308.

STUDENT COUNCIL TO SPONSOR ALL-SCHOOL DANCE

The Student Council of Southern will sponsor an informal all-school dance in the gymnasium on February 12.

The dance will be held from 7 to 11 p. m. Music will be provided by Ernie Limpus and his orchestra, and refreshments will be served.

The dance will be free and the student body and faculty are invited by the council to attend.

HOW CROWDED IS 'CROWDED'?

Use of Nine Temporary Buildings Indicates Southern's Expansion

It seems odd that an institution, after three-quarters of a century of existence, should be suffering growing pains, but such is the case here at Southern. There are now nine buildings located immediately off the campus being utilized for classrooms and offices. These buildings, most of which were once private homes, are taking care of the overflow of classes and students from the main buildings, and also house other educational facilities.

The foreign language building on South Illinois Avenue incorporates an entire department under one roof. Dr. Vera L. Peacock, chairman of that department, states the department is well pleased with the arrangement, as there are no other classes to interfere with display materials, board work and the recording devices which are used for speech work in foreign languages.

Although these growing pains may cause a little inconvenience, they are by no means detrimental to the university. They are merely evidence of the expansion of Southern and will have to serve until permanent buildings can be constructed.

The building shown above is the newly acquired Agriculture building. This building, located at 1028 S. Thompson, was recently put into use, but is still undergoing repair.

Charles Dickerman Wins Honors In Science Research

Charles Edward Dickerman, 15, University high school senior, was one of the 260 high school students of the United States to be awarded an honorable mention citation in the 1947-48 Westinghouse science talent search. The search is conducted by science service through science clubs. It is sponsored by the Westinghouse Educational Foundation.

Out of the 8,161 contestants from all 48 states and the District of Columbia, 300 are chosen. The first 40 receive scholarships but no money. The next 260 receive honorable mention, but no scholarship. Their names are turned into the universities and the 260 boys and 56 girls possess an unusually high potential for achievement in science, such that any institution of higher learning would be justified in considering their abilities carefully.

The judges reported, "It is possible for the students to get college and university scholarships through the recommendations of the judges."

Charles was one of 11 in Illinois to receive an award, and the only one in southern Illinois. These students were chosen on the basis of their showing in a science aptitude examination, their own scientific projects, scholastic records, and their teachers' reports on their interests and abilities.

In Sports Writer. Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bart Dickerman of 817 West Walnut street, Carbondale. He is the sports editor of the high school paper, sports editor of the yearbook, writes high school sports for the Free Press, and is in the science club. He also plays in the University band and orchestra.

HINRICH, BOATMAN VISIT SCHOOL NEAR METROPOLIS

On Thursday, January 29, Dr. Marie Hinrich, head of the Department of Philosophy and Health Education, and Ralph Boatman, Health Coordinator, visited Lower Union School in Massac County near Metropolis.

They assisted Miss Mae Locket, the teacher, in screening her children and checking them for physical defects. Parents of children who were found to have some physical defect such as hearing, vision, or dental, were referred to their own family physician for more complete checkups and treatment.

Southern is attempting to assist teachers to form programs for screening their children and referring them to their parents and family physicians for diagnosis and treatment by offering in-service training through extension courses and training through such visits as these where on-the-spot assistance is offered. The work in Massac County is being carried on with the assistance of Mr. L. W. Smith, County Superintendent of Schools. Further assistance has been sought by the teachers in Lower Anderson school, Gilliam school, Hurricane school, and Mermot school. Visits have been planned for these schools during February.

ZERO WEATHER CALLS FOR FIRES IN GREENHOUSE

It's bad news for the botany department this week. The university greenhouse, located on the east side of the campus, has been very trying to the botany department these last three weeks. Steam for the greenhouse had to be supplemented by the California style smudge pots to keep out the freezing weather. Fires had to be lit and tended twice through the night, at 12 p. m. and 2 a. m., by the department personnel.

According to William A. Marberry, assistant professor of botany, campus landscaping and beautification director, for a month of work, raising shrubs and plants for transplanting on the campus this spring, has literally gone up in smoke. The chill from the intense cold and sulphur fumes from the smudge pot fires, have caused considerable damage to the plants.

In addition, photosynthesis experiments have had to be cancelled due to the inadequacy of plant material for students to use.

We Quit Smoking

(A True Confession)

By T. O.

"Do you realize," we said to Bill as we were walking to school, "that we haven't had a cigarette for the past forty-eight hours?"

"Yeah," he retorted, "and pipe whistles."

We assured Bill that we meant it. We watched the sun lift its eyebrows over the gymnasium and embrace and rejuvenate the icy-weathered bricks of Old Main. Like Old Main, we too, had persistence of character and a perseverance, left unmarred and untouched from dawn to dawn. I had actually quit smoking.

For a long time, we had tried to quit. We tried chewing gum, first of all; but, that made me hungry, and when we were hungry we craved a cigarette. Then we tried smoking a horse's hair in a cigarette—but after a while we didn't notice it and the horse began to complain. Thirdly, we coated the tip of the cigarette with slum; however, we soon began to enjoy the invigorating effects of the powder.

One night, when Bill and I were sitting in Walgreen's someone blew cigarette smoke through a tissue and showed me the ugly brown splootch that it left. We could see the little brown splootches chasing around in our blood stream. Since then, we hadn't smoked a cigarette.

As we turned up the main walk, Bill took a final drag on his fog, and he sermonized, "We'll bet your lungs are nothing but two little brown splootches!"

We entered the Stable—er, Old Main—and promptly went to our stall—er, classroom. All through Professor Critter's lecture, I noticed that Bill was snoring. His whole anatomy craved a cigarette. He would take one of the evil weeds from his pocket and pass it before his nose, but this brought only momentary relief.

"And now for your assignment for tomorrow," Prof said, his lecture at an end, "Read chapters

Bill broke the calm with, "Well, what do you think of that?"

My answer was a question: "Do you have a cigarette?"

Looking At High School Sports

With the Katoke of Collinsville downing two better than mediocre squads, Wood River and Mt. Vernon last week end, they maintained their hot pace and kept the lead in United Press and Associated Press polls this week. Hotly contesting for second place are Pekin and the Salem Wildcats. The Chicks slipped in ahead of the "cats" way of their victory over the two former first place holders, Canton and Galesburg. Pinckneyville clung to fifth in its onward push toward a very successful season by the Benton Invitational tournament. Here too is something of a revival of the "dead" (interest in basketball in Benton, that is). The Rangers are hot at late and the rebounding and scoring ability of Moore and Bauer are something of unusual talent not shown on a Benton court in a long time. We believe that if the Rangers can keep up the pace they are setting now and improve as much as they have since Christmas, and if they come to the Carbondale Section after beating out their Franklin County, and Johnston City foes, they should go to state. (Whew).

Huskies Edged By a Point In Last Conference Meet With Holdermen Quintet

The rampaging Southern Illinois University Maroons, victorious in 16 out of 17 games thus far, will entertain the Northern Illinois State Teachers college of DeKalb in a conference encounter in the local gym Saturday evening. It will be the second meeting of the two clubs this year with the Holdermen having edged the Northerners of Coach Ralph McKenzie 12 to 61 on the Huskies home court early in January.

The Maroons continue to dominate the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic Conference with four wins without a loss whereas DeKalb has a record of two wins against three losses in league play. The rivalry of these two teams dates back to 1920 when Southern trounced the Northerners 38 to 20. Since that time, 30 games have been played between the two schools with the Maroons holding an overwhelming edge, having won 21 of the contests. DeKalb has not beaten the local quintet on the SIU hardwood since the 1933-34 season.

Coach Lynn Holder will stick to his usual starting lineup in case of the Maroons' eighth consecutive victory. Currently undefeated at home this season, the team will feature Bob Colborn of Flora, Captain Quentin Stinson of Eldorado, Ollie Shoaff of Mt. Carmel, and Jack Eddie and Joe Hughes, both of West Frankfort.

In a preliminary game, the Southern squad, which is set to open out of nine games will tangle with the Anna 44's. In the 44's line-up will be Leticia Cabutti, former varsity athlete here at Southern, and Gene Jones.

Southern Gridders To Open Season Against Wayne U

The Southern Illinois University Maroons will open their 1947-48 football season against Wayne University in Detroit on Sept. 25, according to information released by Glen "Abe" Martin, Director of Athletics.

The eight game schedule includes five home games and three trips on the road. By scheduling Wayne University, Southern has taken a definite step toward securing tougher opposition for athletic teams. The Detroit school is recognized throughout the country as a top notch performer in football and the September 25 game against Wayne University will serve as a proving ground to test the strength of the Maroon eleven. The scheduling of the game was made on a year basis.

The Maroons, defending champions of the Illinois Intercollegiate Conference and victorious in the inaugural Corn Bowl classic held in Bloomington, have only three regulars from last years championship squad.

Paced by the sharpshooting of Edgar Allen, Sigma Beta Mu's intramural games upset the unbeaten Educated Hoboes, 63-49, in an American league encounter played in the men's gym Monday night. The tilt left the Gunners in sole possession of first place, being the only undefeated team in the league.

The Marrow the Gillespie Miners, Midgets, and Deacons maintained their perfect records to remain in a tie for the top position in the National league.

KDA Swamp Sacks
